

Announcing the 2003 Washington Governor's Award for Pollution Prevention & Sustainable Practices

2002 Governor's Award winners, Columbia River Carbonates of Woodland, accept their award from Governor Gary Locke

- What: A competitive annual award recognizing those Washington enterprises that have achieved significant pollution prevention goals and moved their operations towards sustainable practices.
- Who: Open to all Washington businesses, government agencies, organizations and schools that are in good standing with environmental regulations.
- When: The application period opens April 1, 2003. Applications must be submitted by June 6, 2003 to the Washington Department of Ecology. The Governor will present the awards in a public ceremony in October 2003.
- How: Information about the award program and past winners is available on the Sustainability Web site: <http://www.ecy.wa.gov/sustainability> or by contacting Mariann Cook Andrews, the Governor's Award Coordinator at the Washington Department of Ecology, at (360) 407-6740, e-mail: maco461@ecy.wa.gov

If you require this document in alternative format, please contact
Mariann Cook Andrews at (360) 407-6740 (Voice) or 711 or 1-800-833-6388 (TTY).